1. COURSE OBJECTIVES

The objectives of this course are to

1. Facilitate effective listening skills for better comprehension of academic lectures and English spoken by native speakers.
2. Focus on appropriate reading strategies for comprehension of various academic texts and authentic materials.
3. Help improve speaking skills through participation in activities such as role plays, Discussions and structured talks/oral presentations.
4. Impart effective strategies for good writing and demonstrate the same in summarizing, writing well organized essays, record and report useful information.
5. Provide knowledge of grammatical structures and vocabulary and encourage their appropriate use in speech and writing.

2. PREREQUISITES

Students should have knowledge on

1. Enhancing communication skills.
2. Learning LSRW Skills and vocabulary.

3. SYLLABUS

UNIT II

Lesson: NATURE: The Brook by Alfred Tennyson (Poem)

Listening: Answering a series of questions about main ideas and supporting ideas after listening to audio texts.

Speaking: Discussion in pairs/small groups on specific topics followed by short structured talks.

Reading: Identifying sequence of ideas; recognizing verbal techniques that help to link the ideas in a paragraph together.

Writing: Structure of a paragraph- Paragraph writing (specific topics)

Grammar: Cohesive devices-linkers, use of articles and zero article; prepositions.

Vocabulary: Homonyms, Homophones, Homographs.

4. COURSE OUTCOMES

1. Understand the context, topic, and pieces of specific information from social or Transactional dialogues spoken by native speakers of English. (L2)

2. Apply grammatical structures to formulate sentences and correct word forms. (L3)
3. Analyze discourse markers to speak clearly on a specific topic in informal discussions. (L4)
4. Evaluate reading/listening texts and to write summaries based on global Comprehension of these texts. (L5)
5. Create a coherent paragraph interpreting a figure/graph/chart/table. (L6)

5. Co-PO/PSO Mapping

8. LECTURENOTES

1.1 Introduction:

The Brook is a poem which is written by Alfred Lord Tennyson. Alfred Tennyson, 1st Baron Tennyson FRS was a British poet. He was the Poet Laureate during much of Queen Victoria's reign and a British poet often regarded as the chief representative of the Victorian age in poetry. In 1829, Tennyson was awarded the Chancellor's Gold Medal at Cambridge. His poetry is remarkable for its metrical variety, rich descriptive imagery, and exquisite verbal melodies. Tennyson's use of the musical qualities of words to emphasize his rhythms and meanings is sensitive.

Alfred, Lord Tennyson published "The Brook" in 1886, during the Victorian era, at a time when England's natural beauty was being rapidly altered by growing cities and factories. The poem features a brook narrating its travels through the countryside. Vivid images of nature's beauty flow through narrow stanzas that seem to mimic the movement of an actual brook. However, 'The Brook's' seemingly peaceful tone carries an underlying message about the fleeting nature of human life, conveyed by the refrain: "For men may come and men may go, / But I go on forever."

1.2. Summary of the poem

'The Brook' describes the journey of a stream from its place of origin to the river that it joins. The poem has been written in the form of an autobiography where the brook relates its experiences, like a human being as it flows toward the river. In literature, such a device by which an inanimate object is made to appear as a living creature is called Personification. The poem is a ballad in which the speaker—the brook, or stream, itself—undertakes a long and winding journey across the countryside to join up with a larger river.

The poem is full of symbolism. 'The Brook' represents the life of a man. From birth till adulthood, a man's life is full of activities; similarly, the brook is quite active and noisy from birth till it joins a river and becomes one with it. After joining the river, it becomes quite peaceful and flows quietly. Similarly, after becoming mature and an adult, a man also becomes calmer and more composed.

The Brook also teaches us many important lessons of life. It teaches us the lesson of determinedly moving on, overcoming all obstacles; and finding a detour around rock-ridden courses. Similarly, a man must move towards his goal like a river or a brook if he is to achieve his goals. His path may be full of obstacles, but he must keep moving like a brook.

As the brook starts its journey from high mountains, on its way to the river it flows down many valleys, hills; slips between many ridges, flows by many villages, towns and cities, passing under many bridges, ultimately it joins the brimming river. Similarly, man must pass by and overcome many obstacles before reaching his goal or destination. So brook teaches us the lesson of perseverance, flowing energetically despite all obstacles, and never giving up.

LISTENING

LISTENING FOR MAIN IDEA & SUPPORTING IDEAS

Students have to be able to understand the main idea of what is said, as well as specific details. They may need to check any predictions they have made, and understand the speaker's meaning, emotions and opinions. They may have to infer relationships between speakers, or identify the context in which the speakers are operating. Students may well have to use several of these skills in the course of a single listening activity. bfhks

Here are some of the main skills involved in listening, together with a brief description of what each skill involves.

Listening for the main idea – Students listen to identify the overall ideas expressed in the whole recording.

Listening for details – Students listen for groups of words and phrases at sentence level.

Listening for specific information – Students listen for particular information at word level.

Predicting – Students try to guess key information contained in the recording before they listen.

Inferring meaning – Students listen to identify the difference between what the speaker says and what they actually mean.

Identifying emotion – Students listen to identify the mood of certain speakers.

Listening for opinions – Students listen to identify the attitude of certain speakers.

Inferring relationships – Students listen to identify who the people are in the recording and what the relationship is between them.

Recognizing context – Students listen to aural and contextual clues to identify where the conversation takes place, who is speaking, etc.

What is the main idea questions in listening?

Every listening sample will begin in the same way: with a main idea question.

They usually take one of the following forms:

Why does the professor ask to see the student? What problem does the student have?

What is the main idea of the lecture?

What subject is the professor mainly discussing?

What strategies can be used to listen for main ideas?

Here are a few more Effective Listening Skills:

Maintain good eye contact - while not staring.

Lean slightly while not encroaching on someone's personal space.

Reinforce by paraphrasing and giving feedback at the right time.

Ask clarifying questions.

Try to eliminate distractions.

SPEAKING

SHORT TALKS

In most English-speaking countries, it is normal and necessary to make "short talk" in certain situations. Small talk is a casual form of conversation that "breaks the ice" or fills an awkward silence between people. Even though you may feel shy using your second language, it is sometimes considered rude to say nothing. Just as there are certain times when short talk is appropriate, there are also certain topics that people often discuss during these moments.

Read through the Who, What, Where, When, Why page to gain a better understanding of short talk. The hardest part about making short talk is knowing how to start a conversation. Review the conversation starters and practice them with a friend.

What are examples of short talks?

Short Talk: Conversation Starters

Beautiful day, isn't it?

Can you believe all of this rain we've been having?

It looks like it's going to snow.

I hear they're calling for thunderstorms all weekend.

We couldn't ask for a nicer day, could we?

How about this weather?

Talking about current events

Did you catch the news today?

Did you hear about that fire on Fourth Street?

What do you think about this transit strike?

I read in the paper today that the Sears Mall is closing.

At the office

Looking forward to the weekend?

Have you worked here long?
 I can't believe how busy/quiet we are today, can you? Has it been a long week?
 You look like you could use a cup of coffee.
 At a social event
 So, how do you know Justin?
 Have you tried the cabbage roll that Sandy made?
 Are you enjoying yourself?
 It looks like you could use another drink. Pretty nice place, huh?
 I love your dress. Can I ask where you got it?

READING

Sequencing

Sequencing is one of many skills that contribute to students' ability to comprehend what they read. Sequencing refers to the identification of the components of a story—the beginning, the middle, and the end—and also to the ability to retell the events within a given text in the order in which they occurred.

It could be as simple as a story that involves more than three events or explaining a recipe or driving directions, for example. Include sequence words like first, next, then, and soon. These words are often seen in both a horizontal and vertical format to link between the sentences in a paragraph. Sentences are usually arranged in order.

This order may be:

- chronological (according to time), such as when describing events
- spatial (according to space), such as when describing places or a scene
- logical (according to a cause-effect relationship), such as when emphasizing the interconnection of ideas, events, etc.

For example, in a description of a house, the sentences may be arranged in a spatial sequence. The writer may begin by mentioning big-picture details such as its size, location, etc. Next, the writer moves inside the house and describes its rooms one by one (where they are located in the house, their purpose, how they have been decorated, etc.). Finally, the writer might describe the outdoor spaces, such as the garden and backyard.

Sequencing sentences into an order, such as the above, ensures that the reader is able to visualize the text clearly and follow it easily. Describe the kitchen and then move to the bathroom and then abruptly talk about the kitchen again; the reader might feel disoriented and confused.

EXERCISES

Six sets of sentences are given below. In each group, the sentences have been jumbled out of order. Note down the correct sequence of sentences that will produce a coherent paragraph in each case.

SET-1

- It contains of course the meanings of words
- One of the most important reference books that you must possess is a dictionary
- It also gives you the pronunciation of the words
- You do possess one perhaps, but I doubt whether you are aware of the different kinds of information it contains.
- The dictionary can be referred to for the various grammatical forms of words as well.
- Every college dictionary should provide at least these four kinds of information about words, namely pronunciation, meaning, grammatical patterns and usage.
- Finally, a good dictionary contains illustrative sentences or phrases, showing how words are actually used.

Correct sequence: 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7.

SET-2

WRITING

Paragraph Writing

A paragraph is a series of sentences that are organized and coherent, and are all related to a single topic. Almost every piece of writing you do that is longer than a few sentences should be organized into paragraphs.

Paragraph writing is not just expressing your views about the topic in a group of sentences. It is all about structuring ideas in a clear format to make the reader fall in love with the topic and continue their studying till to an end of the topic. While writing paragraphs about any topic, it's more important to maintain the quality and flow of the paragraph than word count. Paragraphs are often thought of as a 'unit' of thought.

The basic paragraph consists of three parts: a topic sentence, supporting details, and a concluding sentence. This basic paragraph format will help you to write and organize one paragraph and transition to the next.

1. Topic Sentence

- What is the topic sentence? The topic sentence is the first sentence in a paragraph.
- What does it do? It introduces the main idea of the paragraph.
- How do I write one? Summarize the main idea of your paragraph. Make clear what your Paragraph will be about.

2. Supporting Details

- What are the supporting sentences? They come after the topic sentence, making up the body of a paragraph.
- What do they do? They give detail to develop and support the main idea of the paragraph.
- How do I write them? You should give supporting facts, details, and examples

3. Concluding Sentence

- What is the closing sentence? The closing sentence is the last sentence in a paragraph.
- What does it do? It restates the main idea of your paragraph.
- How do I write one? Restate the main idea of the paragraph using different words.

Some Useful Transition Words to write a good Paragraph:

- To show addition: again, and, also, besides, equally important, first (second, etc.), further, furthermore, in addition, in the first place, moreover, next, too
- To give examples: for example, for instance, in fact, specifically, that is, to illustrate
- To compare: also, in the same manner, likewise, similarly

- To contrast: although, and yet, at the same time, but, despite, even though, however, in contrast, in spite of, nevertheless, on the contrary, on the other hand, still, though, yet
- To summarize or conclude: all in all, in conclusion, in other words, in short, in summary, on the whole, that is, therefore, to sum up
- To show time: after, afterward, as, as long as, as soon as, at last, before, during, earlier, finally, formerly, immediately, later, meanwhile, next, since, shortly, subsequently, then, thereafter, until, when, while
- To show place or direction: above, below, beyond, close, elsewhere, farther on, here, nearby, opposite, to the left (north, etc.)
- To indicate a logical relationship: accordingly, as a result, because, consequently, for this reason, hence, if, otherwise, since, so, then, therefore, thus

Topic 1: My favourite season

Topic 2: my favourite hobby

GRAMMAR AND VOCABULARY:

Cohesive Devices

Cohesive devices, sometimes called linking words, linkers, connectors, discourse markers or transitional words.

Cohesive devices are words like 'For example', 'In conclusion', 'however', 'and', 'moreover'. Together with coherence, cohesion provides 25% of your marks in both parts of the Writing test.

What are cohesive devices?

Cohesive devices tell the reader what we are doing in a sentence and help to guide them through our writing. They signal to the reader what the relationships are between the different clauses, sentences and paragraphs.

Cohesive Devices are generally used to convey the ideas of:—

1. Addition—And, also, besides, moreover, in addition, in addition to.
2. Contrast—Despite, But, However, Yet, Still, Though.
3. Choice—Or, Either.....or, Neither.....nor.
4. Purpose—So that.
5. Result/effect—Consequently, So, Therefore, Thus.
6. Cause/Reason/Consequence—Because, as, since, for.
7. Time—After, Then, When, before, at last, finally, till, at first.
8. Similarity—Similarly, Likewise
9. Exemplification—For example, for instance, such as, particularly.
10. Clarification—In other words.

Articles

What is an article?

Articles ("a," "an," and "the") are determiners or noun markers that function to specify if the noun is general or specific in its reference. Often the article chosen depends on if the writer and the reader understand the reference of the noun.

The articles "a" and "an" are indefinite articles. They are used with a singular countable noun when the noun referred to is non-specific or generic.

The article "the" is a definite article. It is used to show specific reference and can be used with both singular and plural nouns and with both countable and uncountable nouns.

A few important definitions to keep in mind:

Countable noun: The noun has both a singular and plural form. The plural is usually formed by adding an "s" or an "es" to the end of it.

One horse, two horses

One chair, two chairs

One match, two matches

Countable nouns may also have irregular plural forms. Many of these forms come from earlier forms of English.

One child, two children

One mouse, two mice

Uncountable noun: The noun refers to something that cannot be counted. It does not have a plural form.

Information

Proper noun: The name of a person, place, or organization and is spelled with capital letters.

Tim Smith

McDonalds

A" or "An"

When to Use "A" or "An"

"A" and "an" are used with singular countable nouns when the noun is non-specific or generic.

I do not own a car.

In this sentence, "car" is a singular countable noun that is not specific. It could be any car.

She would like to go to a university that specializes in teaching.

"University" is a singular countable noun. Although it begins with a vowel, the first sound of the word is /j/ or "y." Thus, "a" instead of "an" is used. In this sentence, it is also generic

(It could be any university with this specialization, not a specific one). I would like to eat an apple.

In this sentence, "apple" is a singular countable noun that is not specific. It could be any apple.

"A" is used when the noun that follows begins with a consonant sound. A book
A pen

A uniform (Note that "uniform" starts with a vowel

"An" is used when the noun that follows begins with a vowel sound. An elephant

An American

When to Use "The"

"The" is used with both singular and plural nouns and with both countable and uncountable nouns when the noun is specific.

The book that I read last night was great.

In this sentence, "book" is a singular, countable noun. It is also specific because of the phrase "that I read last night." The writer and reader (or speaker and listener) know which book is being referred to.

The books assigned for this class are very useful.

In this sentence, "books" is a plural, countable noun. It is also specific because of the phrase "for this class." The writer and reader (or speaker and listener) know which books are being referred to.

The advice you gave me was very helpful.

In this sentence, "advice" is an uncountable noun. However, it is specific because of the phrase "you gave me." It is clear which piece of advice was helpful.

Here are some more specific rules:

"The" is used in the following categories of proper nouns:

Museums and art galleries: the Walker Art Center, the Minneapolis Institute of Art

Buildings: the Empire State Building, the Willis Tower

Seas and oceans: the Mediterranean Sea, the Atlantic Ocean

Rivers: the Mississippi, the Nile

Deserts: the Sahara Desert, the Sonora Desert

Periods and events in history: the Dark Ages, the Civil War

Bridges: the London Bridge, the Mackinac Bridge

Parts of a country: the South, the Upper Midwest

In general, use "the" with plural proper nouns.

The Great Lakes

The French

The Rockies (as in the Rocky Mountains)

"The" is often used with proper nouns that include an "of" phrase.

The United States of America

The University of Minnesota

The International Swimming Hall of Fame

Use "the" when the noun being referred to is unique because of our understanding of the world.

The Earth moves around the sun.

Prepositions

Simple Prepositions: These are most commonly used prepositions.

Ex: -At, in, into, for, from, of, off, on, out, till, to, up, with, through, down, by, etc.

Compound prepositions: These are usually formed by prefixing a preposition ('a' or 'be') to a noun, an adjective or an adverb:

Ex: -About, beside, besides, inside, Along, below, outside, across, beneath, within, between, among, without, against, beyond, underneath, for, since.

Phrasal prepositions: These are formed by joining two or more words and function as a preposition,

Ex: -Along with, in addition to, in place of, because of, in case of, in spite of, by means of, in course of, in favor of, with regard to, instead of, in accordance with.

Uses of prepositions

1. At / on / in

'At' is used for a precise time

'In' is used for months, years, and centuries. 'On' is used for days and dates.

Ex: I have a meeting at 10 am

Do you think we will go to Saturn in the future?

Do you work on Sundays?

2. At / in / to / into

'At' shows stationary position or existing state. While 'in' shows movement.

Ex: She is at home.

The train is in motion

‘At’ for small place, town etc. While ‘in’ for big place, town, city, country etc.

Ex: Helivesat Alwar in Rajasthan.

A temple is situated at Madurai in Tamilnadu.

3. In/into

‘In’ shows existing state of thing while ‘into’ shows movement.

He jumped into the river.

There are three students in the class.

4. To/from

‘To’ direction, destination, comparison’ from ‘starting time/point of time

Ex: Turn to the right

I am going to Jaipur

They prefer coffee to tea.

Ex: He lived in London from 1980 to 1990

The procession started from Chennai.

5. With/by

‘With’ is used for instruments and ‘by’ is used for agents

Ex: The snake was killed by him with a stick

The letter was written by Suresh with a pencil

6. Since/for:

‘Since’ point of time and ‘For’ period of time. They are used with only perfect tense.

Ex: It has been raining since two o’clock.

He has been training for two hours.

1.8. VOCABULARY: HOMONYMS, HOMOPHONES, HOMOGRAPHS

What are Homonyms?

The word “homonym” comes from the prefix “homo”, meaning “the same”, and the suffix “-nym,” which means “the name”. Hence, Homonyms are words that sound alike and have different meanings.

They sound the same or are spelled the same, but their meanings differ.

Homonym Examples:

1. Address—location/ to speak to
2. Bark—the sound of dogs/ tree's outer layer
3. Band—a ring/ a musical group

What are Homophones?

Homophones sound the same but have different meanings and have different spellings too. An etymological breakdown of the word can help you remember what it means: Homo is the Greek word for “same,” and phone means “sound.”

Homophones Examples:

1. Altar/Alter: Altar: an elevated place or structure for religious rites.
Alter: to change or modify
2. Berth/Birth: Berth: a built-in bed on a train or boat; a space for a boat to dock. Birth: being born; a beginning.
3. Cast/Caste: Cast: a group of actors or individuals. Caste: a social class; a rigid system of social distinctions.
4. Days/Daze: Days: During the daytime one every day or most days.
Daze: To stun, as with a heavy blow or shock; stupefy.
5. Earn/Urn: Earn: acquire or deserve by one's efforts or actions. Urn: a large vase that usually has a pedestal or feet.

What are Homographs?

Homographs are words that are spelled the same but have different meanings and sometimes pronunciation.

Homographs Examples:

1. Entrance—the way in/to delight
2. Bow—to incline/type of knot
3. Bat—an animal/sport equipment

Homonym Exercise:

S.No	Question	BL	CO
1	What kind of landscape is described in the first three stanzas in the brook poem? What is the mood of the poem?	2	2

	ANS: The Brook' by Alfred Lord Tennyson describes the journey of a stream. 'The Brook' represents the life of a man. From birth till adulthood man's life is full of activities; similarly the brook is quite active and noisy from birth till it joins a river and becomes one with it. In the first stanza the brook describes its birth or origin in high mountains where coot and Heron (Heron) live. From there it trickles down the slopes of the mountains and valleys. In the second stanza the brook describes its further journey through villages, ridges and from under the bridges. In the third stanza, it describes how it flows by Philip's farm and then joins the river into which other streams also merge. The brook changes its mood at times. Sometimes it becomes very playful and sometimes like a mature person. It babbles, bubbles and quarrels. As it rubs against its banks, it produces a musical sound showing the energetic mood the Brook is in. At last it murmurs reaching its destination. A very slow and steady movement shows its unwilling mood.
2	What are the various words the poet uses to describe the sound of the brook? How does it contribute to the effect of the poem? ANS: In "The Brook," Tennyson illustrates how the brook makes different melodious sounds as it flows from various places. It makes sounds like "bicker" which means that the brook is making a pleasant trickling sound as it flows into the valley. The words like Chatter, Trebles, Babble, Murmur, show how the brook "chatter[s] over stony ways," the sound of the water tumbling over rocks rings out like clearly aligning the brook with music. Further as the brook reaches the brimming river, through curves and zigzags it becomes acrimonious and violent. The poet ultimately wants the reader to sense some of the poet's tools like the use of sound devices and the	2	2 use of rhythmic significant stress in the articulation of words.

3	How has the poet described landscape, flowers, plants and colors in the poem? How does it make you feel as a reader? ANS: The brook moves on taking many curves and creates rough and unpleasant sound on the banks of the brook. The brook moves through many fields and uncultivated lands. The brook goes through the foreland i.e. the land just before the merging point. The poet describes the land to be a fairyland as with flowers and beautiful plants like willow and mallow. When the brook moves, the waves clash with each other and create bubbles and those bubbles in group make pieces of foams. The brook moves through different curves and the clashes create silvery water break. These foams and silvery water break can be visible on the surface of the water and at the base of the brook there are golden colored stones. The rippling water nudges wild flowers called forget-me-nots that grow along the stream bank. These various shades represent human life which makes a man happy even in moments of hardships.	1	2
4	Explain what you think is meant by the lines 'For men may come and men may go / but I go on forever' What does it say about Nature? ANS: 'The Brook' by Alfred Lord Tennyson describes the journey of a stream. The Brook is a small stream that is born in some mountain. It grows bigger and stronger in the course of its journey. It makes many types of sounds as it flows through the pebbles. Its movements are also varied. This movement of 'The Brook' represents the life of a man's birth, adulthood and death. As a man's life is full of activities, the brook is quite active and noisy from birth till it joins a river and becomes one with it. The brook representing human life, the brook's joining with the river could be read as death and afterlife, as the brook is absorbed by	1	2 something greater than itself and lives on for eternity. While humans only live from birth to death, and no further. So unlike man the brook has no death and keeps flowing eternally.

5	Who is the speaker of the poem? What is the technique of investigating human qualities into non-living things called? Why do you think the poet has chosen to use this technique here? How does it contribute to the effect of the poem? ANS: The speaker of the poem 'The Brook' is the stream itself. The poem has been written in the form of an autobiography where the brook relates its experiences, like a human being as it flows towards the river. The poet Lord Tennyson used a poetic device called Personification as a technique of investigating human qualities into non-living things in the poem, "The Brook". The poet has used this technique to convey the message by personifying the brook that just as the brook overcomes many hurdles and obstacles in its journey bravely and reaches its final destination, in the same way human beings should also remain undeterred to accept the joy and sorrow of life and face all the obstacles, that come in way of their aim.	1	2

11. Part A-Questions & Answers

S.No	Question & Answers	BL	CO
1	Give examples of alliteration and the beautiful images that form the texture of the poem 'The Brook.' Ans: Suddenly, bubble babble, twenty Thorpe's, field and fallow, I slip, I slide, willow-weed are examples of alliteration. The poem forms many beautiful images — the first one is formed in stanza 2 'By thirty hills — a hundred bridges'. This vivid image is of the brook flowing through hills	1	2 and valleys, under bridges and passing by the villages.

2	How is the journey of the brook similar to the journey of life? Ans: There are various similarities between the brook and the journey of life, e.g., both have a beginning, a middle age and an end. There are struggles in the lives of both — the human life continues in spite of struggles and ups and downs and the brook continues to flow against all odds. But one thing is different — man is mortal, whereas the brook is eternal, man may come and man may go but the brook goes on forever.	1	2
3	What is the symbolic meaning conveyed by “Formen may come and men may go, but I go on forever”? The brook represents life in general. Both have an origin, a middle stage and an end. Both struggle against various adversities, odds and keep moving towards their goal. Above all, the brook represents life. Men may come and men may go, but life goes on forever. The same rule applies in the case of the brook. It keeps flowing eternally, like life.	2	2
4	Name the different things that can be found floating in the brook. ANS: The brook passes through many hills, ridges, gardens and valleys. It proceeds on its journey with great force. So it carries many flowers, ferns, pebbles, weeds with its flow. Many times colourful fish like the trout or the grayling can be seen floating in it. When the current is strong, foam gathers on its surface. The brook embraces everything it encounters with great happiness.	1	2
5	What is the message given by the brook? ANS: The poet wants to convey the message by personifying the brook that just as the brook overcomes many hurdles and obstacles in its journey bravely and reaches its final destination in the same way human beings should also remain	1	2 undeterred to accept the joys and sorrows of life and face all the obstacles, that come in way of their aim, bravely.

6	Describe four movements that the brook makes during its journey. ANS: The various movements that the brook makes on its journey are best described by the poet Lord Tennyson through words like sally, sparkle, slide, move, slip, hurry, flow, go, loiter, linger. It sparkles as it merges among the plants with slender leaves, it sparkles in sunshine among the ferns. It hurries down hills and slips between ridges.	1	2
7	What are the various quick movements that the brook makes? ANS. Sometimes the brook moves gently and sometimes forcefully. It also makes a zigzag movement like a snake.	1	2
8	Discuss the importance of the various places that the brook encounters on its journey. ANS: The brook travels through hills and vales, between ridges and under bridges, beside Philip's farm, fallow land and a foreland, making its way through, with a blossom here and a trout there and many a grayling through obstructions of sand and gravel until it falls into the big river. It passes thirty hills and fifty bridges. It chatters and babbles and creates music as it flows.	1	2
9	What is the message of the poet? Ans. The poet compares the journey of the brook with human life with the only difference that human life is mortal, whereas the brook is immortal.	1	2
